ANOTHER EIGHT-HOUR VICTORY

San Francisco.—House Smiths and Architectural Iron Workers' unions have won their fight for an eight-hour day, despite the opposition of leading employers and the chamber of commerce. The shorter workday was to go into effect last July, but 10 firms locked out their employees. Later four of these withdrew their opposition but the remaining six have insisted that eight hours was "not practical."

President P. H. McCarthy of the State building trades council arranged a conference with these employers and this resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That the eight-hour day shall go into effect the first of February, 1917, and that all objection to material from the shops involved is withdrawn."

DEFENDS UNIONISM.

Battle Creek, Mich.—Several manufacturing concerns have locked out their employees because of an eight-hour agitation, and the Press, a daily newspaper, asks:

"Since when has Battle Creek mounted the pedestal apart from other cities of this country and proved the right to hold in contempt an effort upon the part of organized labor to appeal for a better means to live? It's all a mistake."

This newspaper is attempting to break down the prejudice against trade unionism that was created by the late Post, of Citizen's Alliance fame.

Quite Natural.

"Old friends are best." "I know. Still, we all like to make new friends. We can chuck a bluff below them for a while. The old friends have our number."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

COLORADO CITIZENS USE SOCIAL IDEALS

Denver.—Organized labor's claim that its agitation for justice finally permeates every element of society is again proven in a remarkable document signed by 11 of Colorado's prominent citizens and presented to Governor Gunter as a suggested political program.

The bitterness that marked the social, industrial and political life of this state, because of the recent miners' strike, is ignored by these forward-looking men, who declare:

"Never before has a generation of men been better supplied with the signs of its own progress. We can not stand still if we would."

"Tending to impose industrial servitude," is the term applied to the state law which prohibits strikes for 30 days. The workers' criticism of this act is approved, and the governor is urged to favor its repeal.

The unqualified right of workers to organize in unions is favored, as is the theory of collective bargaining, both of which should be supported by public opinion.

Another recommendation provides for the representation of labor, by its own selection, in the board of directors of every industrial corporation employing a given number of workers, whereby capital and labor shall be represented in the board of management, thus introducing the principles of democracy into industry.

Other suggestions include: Clear constitutional and statutory provisions against unreasonable searches, seizures and suspension of the writ of habeas corpus; the subjection of the military authority to the civil power; constitutional assertion that the legislative branch alone has the power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus in all times of public peril; vocational education for children under 16 years of age; abolishment of the death penalty; free text books; stringent laws prohibiting child labor and regulating women workers; strengthen workmen's compensation and direct legislation acts; legislation beneficial to the farmer; unemployment problem to be referred to a state commission with power to develop and conserve the natural resources of the state and to devise ways and means of furnishing employment to all willing workers.

The document is signed by State Supreme Court Justice Tully Scott; William H. Malone, former law partner of United States Senator Shafroth; Judge Ben B. Lindsey of the Juvenile Court; Harry B. Tedrow, United States district attorney; E. P. Costigan, twice a candidate for governor on the Progressive ticket, and other citizens equally prominent.

CAN'T QUIT WITHOUT PERMIT.

Albany, N. Y.—A "can't-strike" law, introduced by Assemblyman Meyer of New York, should satisfy the most ardent advocate of this modern form of serfdom.

If the bill is passed employees can not withdraw from public service corporations before 30 days' notice unless they secure the corporation's consent or a statement by the board of award that the necessity is personal or that family reasons exist.
